Tramps Tie a Housewife.

On the doorstep of her own home, in broad daylight, Wednesday morning, Mrs. Emma Hatfield, of Philadelphia, was attacked by two tramps, and bravely sought to defend herself with a butcher knife against the ruffians, but was overpowered, bound and gagged.

When her husband returned home at noon he found trunks broken open, bureau drawers overturned, the floor littered with the contents and his wife, exhausted and unconscious, tied with a clothesline to the cellar steps, where she had been a wretched prisoner for five hours.

It was a long time before she could recover sufficiently from the terrible shock to relate to him her strange tale. He then learned that about 7 o'clock in the morning, when she was alone in the house, save for her little boy asleep upstairs, a ragged, rough-looking tramp had forced open the rear gate, entered the yard and knocked at the kitchen door.

"Give me something to eat," the tramp demanded of the timid woman, when she opened the door.

"All that I have," she answered, "is some bread; but you are welcome to that."

"Bread? pooh!" ejaculated the vicious-looking beggar with great contempt. "Just trot out some breakfast, or hand over some ducats for me to buy some."

Alarmed at his manner and words, Mrs. Hatfield was about to retreat within the house, when he, by diving her intention, shoved one foot against the door and gave a low whistle. Immediately another tramp, more brutal in aspect, if possible, than the first, hurried in the yard, and together the vagabonds fell upon the defenseless woman.

Desperate through fear she thought of her of the large carving knife lying upon the table nearby. Stepping hastily over to it, she seized it quickly and brandished it menacingly against her assailants. The intruders were pouncing upon her, and in her terror she hurled the knife, her only weapon, at them. It only sped, however, to the other side of the kitchen, clattering to the floor. In a moment she was struggling within their grasp.

In the struggle her clothes were nearly torn from her body. They overcame her at last and knocked her down. A handkerchief was quickly stuffed in her mouth to prevent her shrieks, and her hands and feet were both tied together. They then carried her down to the cellar and fastened her to the steps with a clothesline. Then ascending again they locked the door behind them. Prostrated by the few minutes' ordeal, Mrs. Hatfield swooned dead away.

Before departing the two tramps ransacked the house high and low. In their eager search for plunder they overturned almost everything. When they decamped they took $50 in cash, which they had pilfered from the trunk of a boarder named Maggie Young, together with $6 and a few articles stolen from the rest of the house. Curiously enough, as the incredulous police declare, they left untouched a case of jewelry, and her little son slept through the whole adventure.

SLAPPED HIS BRIDE IN THE THEATRE.—Jacob Bleiweis, a furrier, 23 years of age, was married a week ago. Wednesday night he went to the Thalia Theatre with his wife. During the second act of the play he slapped his wife in the face. She was naturally angry and left the theatre.

He followed her. On the street he seized her and slapped her face again. She ran to her home and her husband chased her all the way.

"You will flirt with the actor, will you?" he cried when in his apartments, and again attempted to strike her. She managed to get out of his way.

Jacob began to enjoy himself by smashing the crockery and windows. The wife went after her relatives and returned with six of them.

They had a difficult time with the husband, but they overpowered him and took him to the Eldridge-street station house.

"They want to kill me," he said to Capt. Cross, pointing to her relatives. In the station house he again became violent. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital.—N. Y. Sun.

HAYLAND'S CHINA

IN OPEN STOCK.

We take pleasure in informing the public that our buyer has just returned from New York where he has selected a number of the new "open-stock" patterns of Charles Fields Hayland's French China, which we now have on exhibition, and we can furnish on short notice sets of any number or kinds of pieces. These are the newest and most desirable goods on the market. An "open-stock" pattern is always desirable from the fact that YOU CAN BUY A PART OF A SET AT THE SAME RATE THE ENTIRE SET COSTS.

Broken pieces can be replaced when desired and additions to your set can be made whenever you wish. You can have Entree Sets, Salad Sets, Game Sets, Fish Sets, Oyster Sets, Chocolate Sets, in fact any sort of set you desire. We are always pleased to show you these beautiful goods and invite you to call. Messrs. Hayland & Abbott, the manufacturers of this China, mailed to a number of our customers here in December a copy of their excellent little pamphlet descriptive of their various productions. If you did not receive one we shall be pleased to supply you. We are sole agents for this ware.
